

The Telecoms industry is experiencing an explosion of competition and escalating customer churn

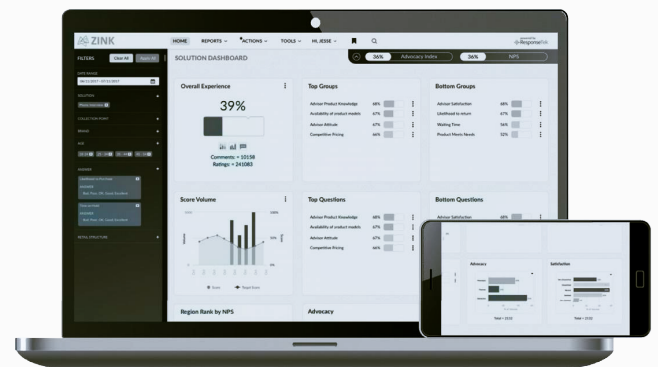

It's increasingly easy for customers to switch providers and the cost of acquisition is high. Consequently, Telcos are leveraging customer surveys as a way to identify and address customer issues earlier. However, outdated survey methods can lead to customers being over-surveyed, resulting in low response rates and a negative customer experience.

ResponseTek for Telco is a cloud-based Customer Experience Management (CEM) solution hosted on Amazon Web Services, enabling customer feedback to be captured as close to the customer experience as possible, delivering accurate information and optimal response rates. Whatever your needs, ResponseTek for Telco offers complete solutions as well as self-service options, putting you in control and providing support when you need it.

Customer Experience Management Platform (CEM)

ResponseTek for Telco enables smart and cost-effective customer experience surveys across your business, including surveys for contact centers, retail, web/app, field services/technicians, and network experience. Common customer pain points and clients with a poor experience are easy to identify, and resolving their issues will drive improvements in customer satisfaction metrics such as Net Promoter Score (NPS), increased revenues, and lower churn rates.
